Pigletté and BoBo arrive at camp and immediately set up the bar. Lots of room here for the boys.

During cocktail hour lots of people visit Pigletté and BoBo.
Her name is Kathy.

Kathy is married to Howie the Beast,
who has BoBo by the neck.
And to think—he is a parent!

Ben treats the boys better than Howie. Does this make him a better parent?

The following day, Pigletté and BoBo move over to the “boys only” camp, where they meet WhiteWater.

Pigletté, BoBo, and WhiteWater settle in for a nap after all the excitement of getting to camp.

Lots of pretty men for the boys to hang out with. This is Brian. He is from Santa Barbara.

That evening the boys find great seats for the talent show.
Everybody is excited!

Our hostess, Velveeta, examines BoBo closely for any signs of abuse. Luckily, she finds none.

Velveeta is such a pretty, shy thing.
Pigletté and BoBo are honored to be in her presence.

The first performer does a little cabaret number.

Do you know the origins of cabaret?

Next there is some sort of underwear contest. Pigletté and BoBo aren't sure what that's about.

Even WhiteWater gets into the act with his portrayal of an unemployed logger's new career.

Next up, Pigletté and BoBo take in a performance by a football player from Portland, Oregon.

Then it's Miss Cookie's turn.
My, what a fetching outfit.
Do you think it would fit Pigletté?

Miss Cookie welcomes the Queen Mum. Pigletté and BoBo are impressed with her poise and charm.

BoBo, ever the royal watcher, insists on a picture with the Queen Mum. She looks scary, up close.

The Queen Mum, back on stage, accepts a proclamation from Miss
Cookie, in yet another outfit.

Even UncleMarkie's long-time friend
Curtis joins in the festivities!
This is his first year at camp.

Lots of talent in this crew!
Pigletté and BoBo are impressed.
Maybe next year they will perform.

Would you buy chocolates from this man? And to think, he used to travel with a dummy.

Daniel, a writer from Vancouver, enchants Pigletté and BoBo with some of his own work.

Peter does a very good rendition of the Wicked Witch from some direction.
Was that East or West?

And Christopher does some very strange things with condiments. What is your favorite condiment?

UncleMarkie relaxes with Pigletté and BoBo during the show.
Don't they look comfortable?

The next day, the campers are preparing for the Doughnut Punchers Ball.

WhiteWater helps wrap Michael.
Pigletté and BoBo are getting hungry looking at all those doughnuts.

What a lovely two-piece doughnut bikini! Pigletté thinks BoBo would look cute wearing one.

Do you suppose that “a moment on the lips, a lifetime on the hips” would apply to this situation?

All too soon, it is time to say goodbye. Brian, StudBoy, and Mick will miss Pigletté and BoBo.

The End

The Boys are off to a family celebration in their latest adventure.

Crowds cheered the first adventure, "Pigletté Goes to Argentina."

Patrons clamored for the second adventure,
"Pigletté Goes to Northern California."

Lines formed for the third adventure, "Pigletté Goes Hawaiian."

And such a romp we had in "Pigletté Takes the Concorde."

What a meeting Pigletté and BOBO have in
"Pigletté Goes to Camp."
